Perashat Behalotecha

Perasha:	Numbers 8:1-12:16	(Page 605)
Haftarah:	Zachariah 2:14-4:7	(Page 620)

In this week's Perasha we learn that Aaron is instructed to light the Menorah, and the Menorah's construction is reviewed. Moshe is commanded to inaugurate the Levites into the service of the Mishkan. Their term of service was from age 25 to age 50. The movement of the Pillar of Clouds as the indicators of when to set or break the camp is identified. In addition to the Pillar of Clouds, Moshe is commanded to make two silver trumpets that would be used to herald the traveling of the encampment or the movement of troops during war. The description of the nation's travels from the desert of Sinai is recorded. The main body of this Aliyah describes the nation's complaints against the physical conditions of their dwelling in the desert. The Manna is described in contrast to the nation's desire for "real food". Moshe expresses his frustrations as leader, and G-d promises to send quail to satisfy the people's desire for meat. Moshe is instructed to appoint a Sanhedrin to help him govern and teach the nation. The 70 Elders are divinely confirmed, and Eldad and Medad prophesize the transition of leadership from Moshe to Joshua.

The Haftarah contains Zachariah's vision of the Golden Menorah flanked by olive branches. This serves as an appropriate counterpoint to the description of the Menorah in the Mishkan at the beginning of the Perasha. The Haftarah also tells about a Kohen Gadol (Joshua in the Haftarah; Aaron in the Perasha). [This vision of the Menorah is used as the national emblem by the State of Israel.] Zachariah explains leadership with the words "Not by might nor by power, but by My spirit..." Only when we act properly, which also means differently from other nations, will we merit the Land of Israel.
